

GUIDELINES FOR PRESENTATION OF ARTICLES

Maguaré. Journal of the Department of Anthropology

Maguaré is a yearly publication published since 1981 by the Anthropology Department at the Universidad Nacional de Colombia. Its main purpose is to divulge original works and researches that contribute to anthropology and other disciplines of social sciences. The Journal fosters and supports thematic, theoretical and methodological openness, through the publication of documents with an anthropological view related to other disciplines like history, sociology, literature, psychology, social work, etc., in order to create knowledge networks and promote interdisciplinarity. The editorial staff is conformed by a director attached to the Anthropology Department at the Universidad Nacional de Colombia's main campus in Bogotá, an editor, an Editorial Committee, conformed by professors from several Colombian anthropology departments, and an International Scientific Committee, conformed by foreign professors with a remarkable academic trajectory, who are in charge of assisting the edition process for the documents received by the Journal. The Journal divulges papers of different characteristics, some of which are the following¹: 1) paper of scientific research: presents in great detail the original results of research projects; 2) paper of reflection: a document presenting research outcomes, from the author's analytic or critic approach to a specific subject, recurring to original sources; 3) short paper: a brief document presenting original, preliminary or partial results of a scientific research; 4) survey on a subject: a document resulting of the survey on literature about a subject of particular interest. It consists of an analysis of at least fifty bibliographic sources; 5) translation: translations of classic or contemporaneous texts, or transcriptions of historical documents of special interest in the publishing scope of the Journal; 6) monograph reports: a document presenting the main points of a thesis work presented to obtain a certain degree.

PAPER ASSESSMENT

Each document received by Maguaré enters a selection process conducted by the Editorial Committee, who selects the texts to be assessed by academic peers. Once the text has been selected, three examiners are assigned to issue a concept about the text. However, the final publication is decided only by the Editorial Committee. Once finished the assessment process, the editor will inform the author about the decision about his document. If it has been selected for publication, the Journal will send the author the corresponding authorization form for its publication and reproduction in digital and printed media.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC REFERENCE SYSTEM

Maguaré uses the bibliographic reference rules of the American Psychologist Association (APA), 6th edition, available in www.wisc.edu/writing/Handbook/DOCAPA.html. This system has a parenthetical citation model, in the case of citation within the text, and another model for the bibliographic list. The citations within the text must be made mentioning the author's last name, year of publication and page, for example: (Benavidez, 1998, p. 125). To mention a work from several authors, the following models are used: when from two authors, (Guzmán & López, 1997, p. 38); and when from more than six authors, (Uribe et al., 2002, p. 43). When citing a cited author, it will be written as follows: (Marzal, cited in Pease, 1982, pp. 11-12). The list of bibliographic references must follow the American Psychologist Association model with the modifications we have included for publications in Spanish. To consult some examples of the citation system, please refer to <http://www.revistas.unal.edu.co/index.php/maguare/about>, section Normas de Presentación of any issue.
